STRATOSPHERE GUN

"A 'stratosphere' gun developed by the Army to protect ground troops from enemy strafing was superior to any other such cannon in the world, and could fire a 50 pound, 120 mm. shell 60,000 feet in the air—higher than enemy planes could fly."—Steel in the War.

Trountman; two sisters, Mrs. Nan Weiland, San Pedro, and Mrs. Ruth Clarke, 2075 Torrance blvd. and two nephews, Gordon Clarke of Torrance and Rodney Clarke who is with the Army occupation forces in Germany. Interment will follow in the Roosevelt Memorial Park cemetery.

Mrs. Miller had visited this city last year, at which time she was the guest of her daughter. A son, Clifford Miller, also survives her in New York.

WOULD CITE WIVES . . . Fred Hicks, radioman 2/c, and his wife, who were married last September in Honolulu. Attached to the U.S.S. Tenino, ATF-115, he feels that wives of servicemen should be cited for devotion to their men and for their efforts in keeping up their morale by writing frequent and cheerful letters.

In a recent letter to Miss Irene Mills, Torrance high school teacher, he sends congratulations for her recent citation from the War Department and compliments his own and other servicemen's wives for their assistance in helping "keep up our chins" during the war years. He states:

"There should be some kind of citation for the wives of servicemen who have been so loyal in writing to their men. I don't believe there is another wife in the entire United States who has been more faithful in writing than my own dear wife. It is something, one of the many things, that I shall spend a lifetime trying to repay her." Hicks also remembers to thank Torrance High students for their efforts in helping to keep up the morale of former students and for their efforts in keeping before them the activities of Tartar Town.

FURLOUGH SUGAR RATION PLAN FOR VETS ANNOUNCED

Members of the armed forces on furlough may now be issued furlough rations of sugar by the OPA district office for leaves up to 120 days, Ed Poehlmann, Southland ration chief for the agency, announced today.

Before the amendment, effective May 24, furloughed military personnel were issued regular sugar ration books when their leaves were for 60 days or more and were required to turn in the books upon expiration of their leaves. For furloughs less than 60 days, they were granted furlough rations. Today's action provides uniformity and relieves military personnel of the necessity of obtaining ration books when the furlough period does not exceed 120 days.

Torrance's Benefit In $75,000,000 School Bond Issue Still Question

Los Angeles City Schools released to the press the item quoted below, explaining what the area south of Manchester blvd., including many cities but not mentioning what Torrance nor Lomita, will get from the proposed $75,000,000 bond issue on which the voters are asked to pass June 4.

Mentioned is the start of a proposed harbor district technical junior college, in Wilmington, but Torrance interests urging a "no" vote on the bonds point out that the bonds will cost Torrance $1,500,000, or enough to build a new high school, an elementary school and be a start on a Torrance Junior College.

Following is what the Los Angeles schools have to say about the share of the bond moneys the schools south of Manchester will get:

"A technical junior college, six new elementary schools, a new junior high school, an addition or replacements at 21 elementary schools will be constructed in the southern section of the Los Angeles School District if the $75,000,000 building and improvement bond issue is approved by voters at the June 4 General Primary Election. "This area includes all of the territory south of Manchester, including a part of South Gate, Watts, South Los Angeles and the Los Angeles Harbor district. Best possible estimates for this area indicate population increase of 115,000 since 1940, or a little more than one-third of the entire increase of the city. However, officials find it difficult to determine the actual increase in population because the statistical areas do not coincide with the school boundaries. (Note: Torrance is not mentioned.)

"Plans are to modernize and improve many buildings and make better provisions for cafeterias and physical education at several schools. Many buildings rehabilitated after the earthquake 13 years ago are now in need of improvements, officials say.

"Eight high school buildings are contemplated to increase the capacity of existing institutions.
